Neonatal Pediatric Airway Workshop

The Respiratory Therapy Department of the IWK Health Centre invites you to join us for a day of airway management simulation for neonatal and pediatric patients.

The aim of this workshop is to give participants the opportunity to use various airway management techniques and devices.

Simulated cases, using Laerdal SimBaby® and AirMan®, will allow participants to manage common airway problems in patients ranging from newborn to teen.

Managing the Neonatal Airway and Managing the Pediatric Airway

Workshop Objectives

At the end of this workshop, participants will be able to:

1. Describe common airway problems in neonates and pediatric patients.
2. Describe predictors of the difficult airway
3. Using patient simulation:
 - Demonstrate techniques to maximize bag/mask ventilation.
 - Demonstrate techniques for intubation and securing the artificial airway.
 - Demonstrate the use of airway adjuncts: LMA, bougie and tube exchange catheters.
 - Demonstrate the use of video laryngoscopy and difficult intubation aids

The workshop will run from 0900-1700

The faculty for this workshop will be RTs from the Respiratory Therapy Department of the IWK Health Centre
